

THE PATH FORWARD FOR THE CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM

Across the United States, recent events have had a profound impact on the criminal justice system. COVID-19 has caused issues for community health and safety, as well as a significant backlog of cases and trials. Additionally, there have been deeply felt expressions of the anguish and outrage throughout the nation since the murder of Mr. Floyd. Our country has weathered a lot of hardship and pain in the last three months. What do these times of crisis reflect about our justice system and where do we go from here? We must now find a path forward.

District Attorney Michael Dougherty will lead this virtual presentation, along with the question and answer session. The District Attorney's Office is very excited to announce Congressman Joe Neguse will be a special guest. Congressman Neguse will provide an update on reforms at the federal level and share his perspective on the criminal justice system.
